ECONOMICAL MEAT DISHES.

Meat may be made to go much further in the menu and the dish will be as valuable in nutrition. Servian Rice With Meat.—Wipe off with a dampened cloth a piece of meat weighing about a pound and a half (a piece from the shoulder), cut in inch squares. Heat a frying pan and put in a little sweet lard and an onion cut in thin slices and a third of a carrot. Put over the fire with the meat, a tablespoonful of salt, a tea-spoon of paprika and cook over a slow fire. When half done add a pint of water and a half pound of rice, adding more water as the rice cooks. Season further before serving.

Mutton Stew.-Take a piece from the neck, cut in small pieces and put to cook with a sprig of parsley, a bay leaf, two cloves and two peppercorns with water to nearly cover the meat Let simmer about two hours, then a carrot cut in fancy slices, and six potatoes cut in thick slices, a cup of strained tomato and simmer until the meat and vegetables are tender. move the parsley and bay leaf and

The pink skin on mutton is the part that gives the undesirable woolly taste; if that is removed the stew will be more delicate.

Liver a la Mme. Begue.—Take a pound of calf's liver cut in inch slices. Lay the liver in salted water while layers with the onion; let stand for an hour then cut the liver in cubes, dredge with flour and season with salt and pepper. Dredge the onions in the same way, then fry all in a frying basket, will salt and pepper. Dredge the onions in the same way, then fry all in a farmer. At a family council the you peel five large onions, the larger frying basket until well cooked, the onions a golden brown.

Only Makes Success Greater.

Advertising is a potent force in the building of a business and the broadening of its sales. But it is not all powerful. The only people who can use advertising as to realize on its maximum possibilities are those who could succeed on their own sales ability without printed advertising. Advertising helps to make their success It doesn't supply the principles of success.

Her Cyclone Tollet

It was in the cyclone season, and a bad storm having come up in the night, Mrs. Hall roused her family, and they hurried into their clothes, preparatory to retiring to the cellar.

The 13-year-old daughter, who was just beginning to be particular as to what she wore, hastened—before dressing—into her youngest aunt's room, and although half-crying, inquir-ed anxiously: "Aunt Neilie, would you wear your hobble skirt if you were me?"—Youth's Companion.

grouch because he could not make it fifteen! A bed on the hay in the barn, and every man still hungry as he arose from the "liberal table!" The husky workers groaned and perspired and stood it. Those who had never roughed it kept on as long as they could, and dropped out and were roughed found to the could are the stood of the stood to the s they could, and dropped out and were paid off and told to go. And when Dwight Carleton was handed his wages, after ten days of back-breaking work, he found them insuf-ficient even to pay his railroad fare back as far as Chicago. And then some one stole his spare clothing, and when he "hit the nike" he had when he "hit the pike" he had nothing to carry in his hands.

There came a day to Dwight Carle-ton when he had to sit down by the roadside and wonder if he could ever roasine and wonder it he could ever make another mile. Exhausted with hunger and tramping and exposure, and a fever burning him, he sat with his head in his hands and his courage all gone. And then the children from the country school, a quarter of a mile away, came along on their way home and stopped to look at him and make comments. And a little later came the schoolma'am in her pink sunbon-

It was after the patient had got to the house and found a bed and the telephone had summoned a doctor, that the farmer came up from the held to say to his daughter:

It was two weeks before the pa-tient was able to leave his room, and two more before he was moving around outdoors. Before that he had told his story and written a letter to be mailed to New York city.

"Trying to get through college imp!" was the farmer's reply. "M hump!" our Susie's soft as butter. She be-lieves every word that feller says, and you keep your eye out that they don't elope together. That letter to New York was only a blind. It'll never be took notice of."

blazed up in her cheeks.
"Then who will?"

"I will! I told you so in the beginning. That money is only a loan from a friend." Out in the orchard, the day before he left, the ex-harvest hand tried to pay the money to his nurse, but she held her hands behind her and said she wanted to be his creditor. "For how long?" he asked.

"Till you—you—"
"I shall come back some day to pay my debt. When I do I shall ask for something I dare not speak of now. How long will you wait?"
"Isn't cash in thirty days the rule?"

she blushingly asked.
One spring day three years later the mother ran down into the field to say to the husband:

"Oh, pa, but it's all happened—it's you. all happened!"
"Has that dinged smokehouse tipped over?"

"No, but that young man has walked home from school with Susie

They wanted harvest hands in Indiana, Iowa, Kansas—all over the west. They wanted them so bad that very high wages were offered and agents sent east to talk and advertise. It was free fare out, with keep on the road, and then $3 per day and the most liberal board for weeks and weeks. It was the greatest chance for the students working their way through college, and scores of them took advantage of it.

Dwight Carleton, of Columbia, looked upon it as a special interposition of Providence. In six weeks he could earn sufficient to take him through the winter term. He had no wealthy father to back him.
